LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF THE WAR

Correspondence of the Associated Press

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 12.—Buda dance halls are still doing business, just as before the war. The cafes are thronged every night. The late afternoon promenade along the Corso still exhibits a stream of faultlessly dressed men and women. Theatres, picture shows and cabarets are enjoying apparent prosperity. The second performance of the night begins in many of them at 11 or 12 o'clock.

A visitor searches almost in vain for some indication that the city is in a land at war; that it experienced some months ago the near approach of the tide of war; that it really has suffered greatly, in common with every belligerent capital.

"You won't find any war in Budapest," said a Budapest to the Associated Press representative on the train from Vienna to that city. He was right. More soldiers are to be seen in a half hour in Vienna or Berlin than in Budapest in three days. The streets are full of able-bodied young and middle-aged men in mufti. There is little wearing of mourning garments. The sight of a wounded man is a rarity.

The restaurants and hotels serve unadulterated wheat bread, and there is no such thing as a bread card. The only limit to the amount that may be eaten daily is the buyer's ability to pay for it. Restaurant prices are somewhat higher than before the war, but one of the best hotels in the city serves a table d'hôte luncheon and dinner daily at three and a half crowns, barely more than half a dollar at the present rate of exchange.

While there is great tolerance of the French and English languages in Vienna, it is, nevertheless, a tolerance. In Budapest these languages, in common with the languages of Europe, are spoken as a matter of course. French has been the common language of the educated classes in polyglot Hungary for centuries, and the war has worked no change in this regard. English occupies much the same position among the lower classes as French among the better situated, but it is American English. There are so many returned emigrants from America scattered throughout Hungary that candidates for public office frequently address their constituents in English. Count Apponyi himself, who speaks the language perfectly, has made campaign speeches in English on occasion.

Not only the English and French languages, but the English and French themselves, are unmolested. A few suspicious members of the colony have been interned, but only a few. An English dentist is practicing undisturbed, and he assured the Associated Press representative that the war had made absolutely no difference in his relations with his Hungarian friends and acquaintances.

GOVERNOR'S BROTHER TO BE MARRIED

The engagement of Alexander M. Boyle, brother of Governor Boyle, to Miss Elizabeth Owens of New York City has been announced. This marriage will occur the latter part of November and the couple will make their home in Zaruma, Ecuador, where the prospective groom has been employed for the past three years as engineer for the South American Mines company.—Appeal.
